

Questions about the topic 2.2:

1. Which assumption forms the basis for the development of cultural dimensions?
  - a. All societies face the same basic problems, only the answers differ.
  - b. Modern and traditional societies need to be distinguished in some way.
  - c. Geert Hofstede's studies on values of people from different cultural backgrounds.

2. What does the term 'cultural dimension' mean?
  - a. It reflects different cultural traditions and values.
  - b. It means that cultures across the world are getting more and more interconnected.
  - c. It shows a particular aspect of a culture that can be measured relative to other cultures.

3. To which dimension of Hofstede's model of Cultural Dimensions does the following statement refer?

"The world is essentially as it was created, so that the past is a moral compass, and adhering to it is morally good."

- a. Uncertainty Avoidance
- b. Masculinity versus Femininity
- c. Long-term versus Short-term Orientation

Correct answers:

1a

2c

3c